

Located along the banks of the Potomac River, Washington, DC offers magnificent sights and enjoyable attractions for children and adults of all ages. There are many wonderful things to see and do in Washington, including exploring the monuments and memorials, perusing the Smithsonian museums and the National Galleries, and observing the deliberations of the Congress. I encourage my constituents in Western and Central Massachusetts to visit me here in our nation's historic capital.

Below you will find information about many of the most popular tourist attractions in Washington to help you plan your visit. My office can help you make reservations for some destinations. Other destinations offer public tours; the information below will help you make those reservations. Please follow the links below.
